

Full-Name Index to Crime and Punishment in Henry County, Tennessee 1876-1883

Thomas G. Wallis

The full-name person index includes plaintiffs, defendants, witnesses, jurors, law officers, attorneys, judges, family members, etc. Information about an individual person may range from a single reference (e.g. perhaps a juror) to multiple pages (e.g. a defendant). The interested researcher is advised to consult the text.

The Henry County Archives staff are pleased to provide lookups.

Before using this index, please be aware of the following:

- The names are alphabetized by surname (i.e. “last name”). Surnames are shown in upper case font (e.g. SMITH).
- User beware: it is very likely some names are misspelled (incorrect spelling in the original, poor penmanship, incorrect reading, typographical errors, etc.).
- Wherever possible, females are listed under their maiden names. Married names, if known, are shown in parenthesis after the maiden name. In most cases, cross-references are provided for the married names.
- When a married woman’s maiden name is not known, she is listed by her married name, with “Mrs.” following her given name(s).
- User beware: in some cases it was not known if a female’s surname was her maiden name or married name.
- An attempt was made to include all references to an individual in a single listing, regardless of the varied ways that person’s name is shown in the text.
- At times similar names could not be clearly associated with a particular individual; in such cases separate entries were made in the index (although both may indeed be the same individual).
- For some entries, an abbreviation in parenthesis follows a person’s name to indicate the individual’s role. In cases where an individual may have had multiple roles, this author has chosen to show one primary role only. The absence of an abbreviation does not necessarily mean there is little information about the individual in the text. Conversely, the presence of an abbreviation does not necessarily mean there is an abundance of information about the individual.

Abbreviations used:

p = Plaintiff

d = Defendant

d* = Defendant in a case referred to, but not examined in detail

t = Trial testimony or deposition

v = Alleged victim

Although this author has striven to be accurate, errors in indexing likely occurred. He apologizes for any problems this may inadvertently cause.
